BASICON. European Building Essentials

European-wide basic qualification in building professions - an initiative of Zukunftsbau GmbH Berlin for the standardization of vocational training in Europe

Basicon, the project for the development of structure and products, has the following aims ...

- ... to influence the national discussion process through its transnational work.
- ... to develop a European qualification program of vocational training that corresponds to the actual requirements of the employer and that facilitates entry into the (European) labour market.
- ... to close the gap between training institutions and companies.
- ... to simplify existing tools of certification, make them more practical and comparable on a European level.
- ... to outline a forward-thinking approach for vocational training norms on a European level.

Basicon defines

... which technical and social skills characterize a transnational "basic qualification in construction".

Basicon identifies the steps

... towards making qualification and training standards comparable throughout Europe.

BASICON Products

With the participation of partners from 13 EU States-SME, vocational schools, training institutions, ministries, chambers, trade unions, employers' associations and guilds-Basicon has developed European materials and tools in twelve languages for the attainment and certification of qualifications in building professions, for the identification of existing qualifications and the comparison of qualifications and skills.
